

CS 24 Collaboration Policy

Should any part of this policy be unclear or should you have any questions about how you are allowed to collaborate, you are strongly encouraged to contact your professor.

	Normal HW	Nocollab NW	Exams
You may use the following resources:
Course textbook (including answers in the back)	YES*	YES	YES
Course handouts	YES	YES	YES
Other books	YES	YES	YES
Your notes (taken in class or copied/summarized from class notes of others or official instructor's notes)	YES	YES	YES
Direct copies (such as photocopies, pictures, scans) of class notes of others or official instructor's notes	YES	YES	YES
Your returned assignments	YES	YES	YES
Solutions to assignments / exams from previous years	NO	NO	NO
Solutions to assignments / exams from the current year, distributed by the instructor	NO	NO	NO
Consult material posted publicly on the course forum (e.g. Piazza or other)	YES	YES	YES
Post questions about problems on the course forum (e.g. Piazza or other), provided the question does not reveal a partial solution	YES	YES	YES
Consult online resources such as Wikipedia for general background material	YES	YES	NO
Consult online resources for material specific to the work in the course	NO	NO	NO
Post questions about problems on online sources such as question/answer forums	NO	NO	NO
For coding assignments, you may:
Look at code written by other students in the class	NO	NO	NO
Look at code found in online repositories, or written by former students in the class	NO	NO	NO
Look at code written by anyone not in your group (including online resources or textbooks)	NO	NO	NO
Help other students debug their code, as long as you abide by the 50-foot rule	YES	NO	NO
Ask a non-student (e.g., upperclassmen, tutor) to help debug your code, as long as you abide by the 50-foot rule	YES	NO	NO
Ask the instructor to help debug your code	YES	YES	NO
Use an external library, as long as it does not provide a direct solution	NO	NO	NO
Discuss high-level problems with others in small groups	YES	YES	NO
Look at communal materials, such as a group discussion performed on a white board, while writing up your solution	YES	NO	NO
Look at another student's or group's completed solution	NO	NO	NO
You must:
Turn in your own writeup / program	YES	YES	YES
Indicate the names of all collaborators on your solution	YES	YES	YES
* You may not use the textbook for the malloc assignment			